STEEPED IN HISTORY

The historic space of Hallé St. Peter's dates back to 1858, and boasts original details and breathtaking architecture. The venue was the first Anglican Church to be built in the predominantly Roman Catholic community of Ancoats. Its iconic semi-circular apse was built to ensure the building's prominence against its surrounding angular Mill buildings.

The parish ran for just over 100 years, surviving the Manchester Blitz during the Second World War but from the 1950s onwards the population of Ancoats greatly declined which led to the church closing in 1960.

Through the initial work of the Ancoats Buildings Preservation Trust, Heritage Lottery Fund, English Heritage, the Homes and Communities Agency and the Architectural Heritage Fund, the building was partially restored. In 2013 the Hallé raised significant funding to complete the restoration and convert the Church for use by the Orchestra and associated ensembles, enabling it to reopen its doors as a luxurious event space for private events.
