OUR STORY

Welcome to Scotland's most famous wedding venue, where couples have fled to join their lives together in the name of love since 1754. Our story began over 250 years ago when the Marriage Act of 1754 was passed in England and Wales, stating that all couples under the age of 21 intending to marry must have the permission of their parents. This rule didn't apply in Scotland, so the young and in love began eloping north of the border, converging on Gretna Green – the first village in Scotland.

Young couples would be met at the crossroads beside the Famous Blacksmiths Shop by the 'Blacksmith Priest' – the local blacksmith who conducted marriage ceremonies over the now world-famous marriage anvil in his small shop, with the blacksmith's wife and sympathetic locals standing as witnesses. The legend of the marriage anvil began as the Blacksmith Priests would strike their anvil as part of the wedding ceremony – forging the lives of the two lovers together in an unbreakable bond. To this day the same sound of the hammer ringing on the anvil seals a wedding in our village – and if you listen carefully, you can hear love in the air.

Become part of our ongoing story and join the unbroken thread of romantic history when you marry at Gretna Green.
